As now you are investigating me, I am invoking my right to a trial of my peers. I want my peers to decide if there was any wrong doing on my part, and if it is ethical to genocide the people of South Carolina, to intentionally make them ill, and then murder them in cold blood. I want a jury to evaluate the evidence of the fire hazards, the privacy concerns and security implications. I want a jury to look into the fact that under a false flag called "X" the power can easily be turned off for tens of thousands of South Carolinians for weeks or months at a time to facilitate a fake pandemic.

It is the job of the commission to keep the public safe from people who, under the cover of a corporate entity, are seeking to dodge personal liability for wrongdoing . People who can poison the water supply or raise the rates on electricity by twenty times, as recently happened in Texas.

I met one woman who was arrested for refusing a "spy and fry" meter. I met another woman who told me that if she refuses a smart meter, local government employees will condemn her house. I spoke with another man who (was in the process of getting his meter installed, had his property condemned. Is it ethical to throw a mother out on the street and make her homeless? Is it ethical to throw a man on the street, and then arrest him? How far does this all have to go? Or maybe each of you think there is nothing wrong with the described situations? I need an answer to these questions.

I was personally told by the staff at the agency just below you, that if you don't like having a smart meter, go off-grid. What the staff member failed to mentioned was that local "officials" then would come by and condemn my house. It's like giving a person a shovel and telling him to dig a grave. It's "our way or the highway." Is this ethical to twist people's arms and tell them to go off-grid? I have yet to see this kind of cruelty anywhere--not in L.A, Chicago, NYC. And it's already in my backyard.

What I need from the commissioners is answers to my previous emails. I need to know if we are looking at the smart meter agenda as a whole, or just my particular meter. Next, I need the employment history of every lawyer, commissioner, and everyone else working for the Commission for the last 25 years to see if anyone has worked for the utilities. Next, I need the above information for the spouses, to see if they compromised any of the individuals at the commission. Next, I need to know where everyone who is employed by the commission has investments as well as spouses.

I need to know if I am forfeiting any rights by having my case go before the commission. A lady asked three times if she was forfeiting any rights by entering a courtroom by crossing the doorway into the court. Three times a judge ignored her question and then asked her to enter. I do the same and ask if I am forfeiting any of my rights? I am reminding the commission that I am not a dead entity, and I am not a straw man. I am a living man, and I am to be called Alex, just like I sign each of my letters.

I want to remind the agencies vision: ...by adhering to and embracing the highest level of impartiality, excellence, professionalism, and transparency.

Agency mission: to serve the public by providing open and effective regulation and adjudication of the states public utilities... please keep this in mind.

I want to remind you David Butler, PSC Hearing Officer, that you are a public servant and that you should not have Duke Energy's interest in mind, but the public you serve. Each commissioner is a public servant, and the public's interest comes first.

Thank you, I need a response by March 25th so that I can plan for the hearing.

Kindly Alex.

To Katie Brown, Esquire:

Thank you for your e-mail of March 1, 2021, informing me that, at Mr. Kadoshnikov's request, his meter was moved.

It would be helpful, if you could provide more details. I would like to know where it was moved in relation to his residence, and how far it is located from his residence. Also, please provide the type of pole provided, and whether the meter provided is a smart meter. I would also like to know whether or not Mr. Kadoshnikov is now participating in net energy metering. Please provide any additional appropriate information in this matter. Please provide this information by the close of business on Monday, March 15, 2021.

Thank you for your consideration in this matter.

Regards,

David Butler
